When Colors Begin to Sing

Winter descends upon the Tokaj hills, but at Minaro, the season does not turn gray. It explodes into a canvas of crimson, emerald, and gold, like a mural painted by Frida Kahlo herself. Here, in the Lost World of Minaro, the air tastes of cinnamon and wine, the walls hum with music, and every corner blooms like a marigold under the Mexican sun.

This is not just a program of events. It is a living storybook. A season of emotions, colors, flavors, and rhythms, where each day holds a new adventure. Let the Advent candles lead you through December's wonders, until the New Year arrives in a whirl of music, magic, and fiesta.
